About Women's Voices Now:

Women's Voices Now advances girls' and women's rights through film by elevating underrepresented storytellers and producing social-impact programming that shifts narratives and inspires action.

About Girls' Voices Now:

Girls' Voices Now equips girls from under-resourced Los Angeles communities with filmmaking skills, mentorship, and public platforms to share their stories. Participants move from audience members to storytellers and advocates, building confidence, leadership, and pathways into media careers.

THE MISSION

This fall, 200 girls and young women will come together at the inaugural Girls' Voices Now Day of The Girl Summit for a full day of creative expression and youth-driven conversation. With hands-on workshops, film experiences, and mentorship, the Summit helps build confidence, leadership, and pathways into media and advocacy. It strengthens community while supporting young women as they raise their voices and shape change.
