

Well my family is from Cambodia and so that's makes me Cambodian and little bit of Thai and Chinese but I show more of my Cambodian side. Also I just do as much as I can to reach my goals because those goals are also my dreams. My dreams are actually so hard to do but it's being a singer in Korea. Also am the baby in the family, I have an older brother and we're six years apart but where close even if he doesn't live with me but he checks up on me and stuff. I have lived in the same house since I was born and am 15 almost turning 16. I also like to write little songs and stuff but it's just for fun. Also my hobbies are like taking pictures with my phone and stuff, also listening to music. I feel like my style of clothes are really different then my other friends because I like different styles are clothes and they just stick to one that's what I think. I have internet friends but like 5 or 6 because we understand each other more and they get what I do through and we have so much stuff in common and we just talk about it. That's all I have to stay about my life and also I listen to poop I should check them out.
